GRESHAMITES.

A RUMOR AS TO HOW THEY WILL ACT,

IF THEY SEE NO CHANCE FOR THEIR CANDIDATE.

Mad Union Veterans Appeal to Governor Foraker for Redress—The Keystone Delegates Say They Will Stand by Sherman as Long as There is Hope—The Blaine Managers Still Hopeful.

CHICAGO, June 19.—A News special from Indianapolis says: A story was published here Sunday which has caused a stir in political circles. It is to the effect that it is the purpose of the supporters of Gresham, if they find there is no chance for the nomination of their candidate to defeat Harrison by proposing ex-Governor Porter as a compromise candidate. It is believed that he will be acceptable to the convention, as his popularity in Indiana has been well demonstrated, and his relations with both the Harrison and Gresham factions are friendly.

THE CHICAGO AUDITORIUM.

It is said that the point of danger will probably be reached soon after Governor Porter has made his speech presenting the name of Harrison to the convention.

In connection with this story an interview is published in which Governor Porter is quoted as having said to a Gresham supporter that he was especially friendly to Gresham, although he would vote for Harrison in compliance with the instructions of the state convention.

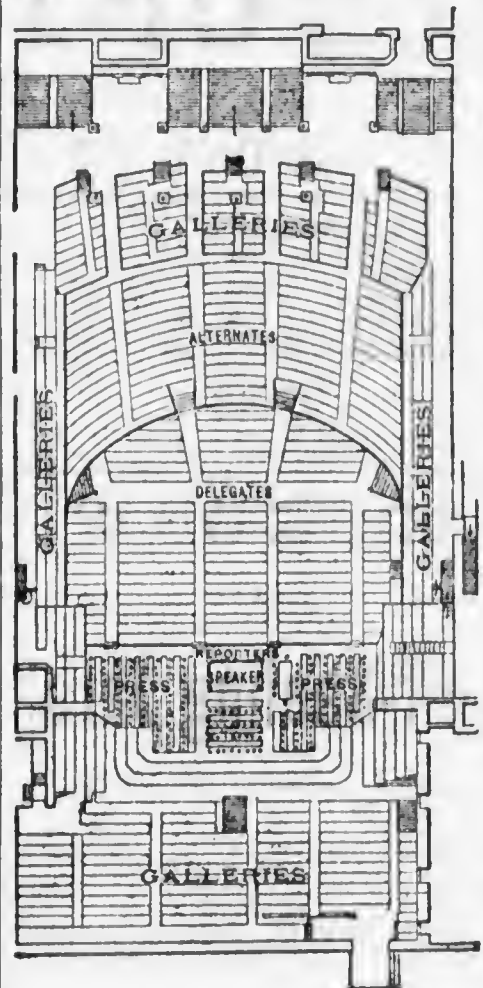

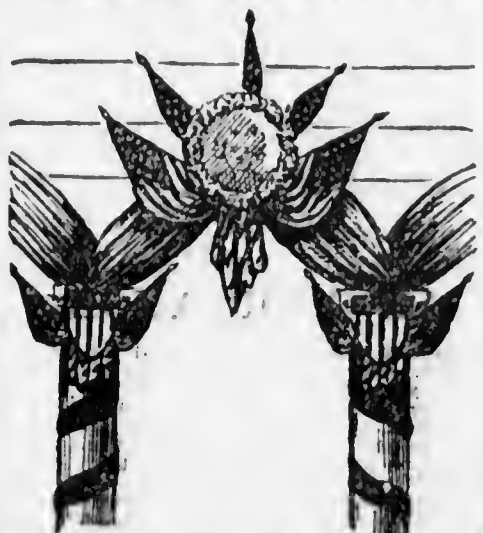

DIAGRAM OF CONVENTION HALL.

The friends of Harrison are evidently uneasy over the disclosure, and do not deny that they are really more afraid of Porter than of Gresham. His position in the convention will be precisely the same as that of Garfield in the convention of 1880. It is well understood that he was chosen to present Harrison's name solely because his prominence and popularity in the state are such that, if he had not been asked to do so,

GRANITE ARCHWAY.

It would have been regarded by his friends as a snub, which they would have resented. Gen. Harrison admitted Sunday that Stephen B. Elkins stopped here on his way to Chicago, and had a conference with him. Gen. Harrison refused to tell what was said at the conference, remarking that enough had been said already.

The Herald says: "C. H. Andrews, accompanied by his son-in-law, John A. Logan, Jr., has arrived at the Palmer house from Youngstown, O. Mr. Logan said that they came here in the interest of Governor Alger, whose nomination they are anxious to secure. 'There is no doubt,' said Mr. Logan, 'but that Mr. Blaine is sincere in what he has previously said—that he was not a candidate—and I do not believe that he would accept a nomination even if it was tendered him. I was for Mr. Blaine until I knew of these facts, and now I am for Governor Alger. He was my father's friend, and he is the soldiers' friend in the truest sense of the term. He would make an excellent president, and ought to be nominated.'"

The Allison forces have begun to parade the city. Badges are being distributed and the handsome headquarters at the Grand Pacific are crowded with enthusiastic shouters for Iowa's favorite son. That Allison is a strong compromise candidate cannot be denied, and that fact is in everybody's mind. The action of New York may change the sentiment for Allison, but there does not at this time appear to be any good reason for stating that it will. The Alger men do not appear to be doing much hard work this afternoon, and in some quarters it is said they have begun to waver. This, however, is stoutly denied at Michigan headquarters.

National Committee Meeting.

CHICAGO, June 19.—There was a full attendance at the meeting of the National committee. As soon as it had been called to order by Chairman B. F. Jones, it was devoted upon the motion of Mr. Little, of

B. F. JONES

Illinois, to proceed to the election of a temporary chairman and upon motion of Mr. Hammill, of Colorado, the roll was called for nominations.

Mr. Davis, of California, submitted the name of M. W. Eley of that state. John M. Thurston, of Nebraska, nominated by Church Howe of that state. There were no other nominations and the roll was called. The vote resulted, Eley 20, Thurston 20. Chairman Jones gave the deciding vote in favor of the Nebraska man and at the instance of Mr. Hammill the choice was made unanimous.

Meeting of the New York Delegation. CHICAGO, June 19.—The meeting of the New York delegation was of but an hour's duration. Everything passed off harmoniously. Mr. Depew was made chairman of the delegation, M. B. Hamilton permanent secretary, and Senator Hiscock was selected for the committee on resolutions. Action on the National committee was deferred. After the selection of committeemen was disposed of, Mr. Depew addressed his colleagues on the question of the presentation of his name to the convention.

His friends had saw fit to place him in the race and while he did not personally desire to serve, he felt that it was his duty to do so if they should insist upon it. He expressed the opinion that his railroad connection might render inadvisable the use of his name before the convention. He would, however, abide by the decision of the delegation.

It was then decided by unanimous vote of the delegation to place Mr. Depew in nomination for the presidency and to stand by the nomination.

New Hampshire will select either B. C. Cheney or E. H. Rollins for the National committee. In regard to candidates the delegation is all divided. There is no settled idea.

There is chaos, so far as candidates go, in the Arkansas delegation.

John Sherman's strength appears to be growing and unless the action of New York changes the drift of opinion he may secure the nomination early.

Mr. Allison's managers continue to hold aloof and are devoting themselves to making friends with the view of catching the scatters in the event of a break from Sherman.

The Pennsylvania Delegation.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The delegates from Pennsylvania, who are naturally supposed to be Blaine men, say that it will be impossible to stampede the delegates now for Blaine, and that Pennsylvania will stand by Sherman for as many ballots as there are hopeful ballots for his nomination.

HON. MATTHEW S. QUAY.

Senator Quay was busy Sunday, and held several important conferences with the Sherman leaders, and has hopes of mollifying the Pacific coast delegations opposed to Sherman, but with no success, so far as can be learned.

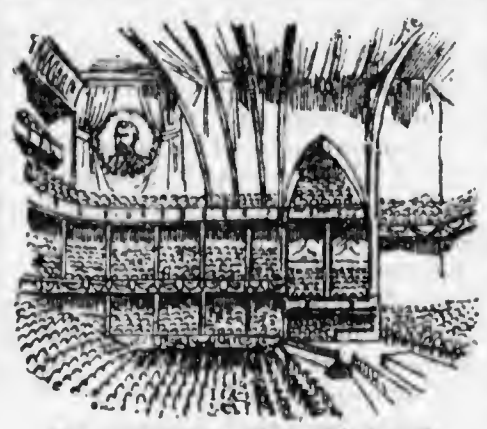

The Pacific coast's opposition to Sherman is a great stumbling block in Quay's way, and the threats made that if Sherman is nominated the Pacific coast will be doubtful, if not lost, has somewhat impeded the Sherman movement.

Mad Union Veterans.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The Union Veteran club, of Chicago, has carried its warfare against the local committee to the convention, and the members are determined to ascertain whether veteran soldiers of Illinois have any status in a Republican convention held in the city of Chicago.

A delegation of the club had an interview with Governor Foraker, of Ohio, and stated to him the fact that the local committee had attempted to insult the veterans by a paltry offer of six page appointments and six tickets of admission, which had been indignantly rejected.

Governor Foraker at once assured the veteran committee that he would bring the matter before the convention at the earliest opportunity. "If the Democratic convention at St. Louis could admit 250 old soldiers I don't see why a Republican convention can't do as much at least, and I will see if we can't do a great deal more," said Ohio's governor.

The committee departed with a satisfactory feeling that they would get even with the local machine in the long run, and teach the bosses that it was a little too early in the game to ignore the old soldier in a Republican campaign.

The Blaine Managers.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The News says editorially: "It may be that the Blaine managers will allow the empty compliment of a first ballot for the 'Favorite Son.' But even that is now doubtful. Still more doubtful is it that they will be forced to make any show of awaiting a deadlock. In that, indeed, now lies the greatest risk of the failure of their plot. Dare they venture to invite deliberation?"

"On the other hand, what prestige may attach to a spontaneous nomination by acclamation on the first ballot? Nothing else would be wanting to compel Mr. Blaine to accept 'without seeming to be guilty of indiscretion.' As it now looks, about the only question which remains to be settled is, on which ballot shall the balloted knight be nominated."

More Blaine Business.

New York, June 1.—A special to the World from Wheeling says the Blaine men in this state adopt novel methods to keep their favorite's name constantly on everybody's tongue. The latest scheme is being worked now on the Chicago bound trains that pass through this city on the Baltimore & Ohio road.

The Intelligence has printed thousands of conductors' hat checks and distributed them among the conductors in charge of the crowded trains. On one end of the check is a portrait of James G. Blaine and the usual legend, "Keep this in sight." The conductors have discarded the regular checks and are using Blaine emblems entirely among Chicago passengers. Many of the train men are Democrats, but cheerfully use them. The passengers all seem to enjoy wearing them, and even Democrats display them in their hats with good grace.

THE OHIO CLUB MAN.

He Will be in Full Attendance at the Chicago Convention.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—The famous Lincoln club, 150 strong, started in the morning on a special train over the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, with lots of enthusiasm and bunting. They wore dark clothes, with coats strictly of the Prince Albert or cut-away order, and lofty and shiny hats. The new badges of the club were worn for the first time. At the head of the body was carried their well known banner with the motto, "The Government of the People by the People and for the People Shall Not Perish From the Earth." They stopped at the Bates house, Indianapolis, for dinner, and make headquarters at the Clifton house in Chicago.

The Young Men's Blaine club left in the evening, 300 strong. The members were attired in dark Prince Albert suits and regulation light pig hats and canes. The also sported brand new badges of white silk with gold lettering, surmounted by the likeness of Blaine. The Blaine Glee club, forty strong, accompanied them. The First Regiment band, with full drum corps and thirty-one pieces, also went along, to make the street music.

THE K. OF P. MUDDLE.

The Supreme Lodge Sustains the Decision of the Supreme Chancellor.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—The report of the Pennsylvania committee, Knights of Pythias, sustains Howard Douglass, supreme chancellor, in suspending the Pennsylvania grand lodge, but not in creating a provisional lodge, and they hold the old lodge in power until August 1, when they must change their laws to be in conformity with the supreme lodge. They recommend the admission of the representatives of the suspended grand lodge to the supreme lodge, vested with the same authority as before the suspension.

During this time the grand lodge of Pennsylvania will be under the direct supervision of the supreme lodge. J. R. Colton will not be recognized as grand chancellor of Pennsylvania, and will have no authority as such. The committee advised the admission of George Hawkes, H. O. Kline and T. G. Sample, representatives of the suspended grand lodge, to seats in the supreme lodge.

The Queen's Sorrows.

LONDON, June 19.—The court circular, announcing the death of Emperor Frederick, says: "Deep sorrow overwhelms the queen and the royal family, who lose a noble and beloved relative, for whom the queen bore the greatest affection and respect."

A BRIDGE GIVES WAY

BENEATH A TRAIN AT ROCKPORT, KENTUCKY.

The Engine and Two Cars Thrown Into the River—The Head Brakeman Killed. None of the Crew Escape Without Serious Injury—The Cause a Mystery.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 10.—At 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon train No. 16, in charge of Conductor J. Compton, Engineer Philip Carroll, consisting of Engine 574, two loaded coal cars and a caboose, left Central City, Ky., bound west. The train reached Rockport at 3:45 p. m. and received the signal from the bridge watchman to cross the bridge, everything safe.

The engineer started the train over the bridge at the usual rate of speed, crossing the draw in safety. When reaching the section on the west side of the main structure, the timbers began cracking beneath the weight of the train, and as soon as the entire train was on that portion of the structure it gave away, going down with the train alighting on the bank of the river below. As soon as the train struck the ground it rolled down the bank into the river, the engine and two cars split in thirty feet of water. None of the occupants of the train escaped injury.

As soon as possible all the available physicians were hurried to the scene of the disaster and everything possible was done for the relief of the sufferers. The only one killed outright was Lum Coleman, colored, the head brakeman, whose body was carried into the river by the train.

The following is a list of the injured: Engineer Phil Carroll, badly bruised about the body, injured in small of back, left leg broken in two places, internally injured, was reported dying.

Conductor J. C. Compton, leg broken, back and head badly hurt, internal injuries, cannot live.

J. G. Love, yardmaster, of Central City, Ky., head and arms badly cut, back broken; reported dead.

Henry Frisoe, fireman, back badly hurt, legs cut, fatal internal injuries.

James Austin, colored brakeman, badly bruised about about body, back injured.

Thomas Fugle, the bridge watchman, was standing on the structure when it went down, and is badly injured in the back, internal injuries, probably fatal.

Samuel P. Bennett, pump repairer, leg and body badly injured, but not fatal.

William Lawson, brakeman, leg and arm broken and head injured.

A relief train arrived at the scene of the disaster Sunday morning, and are fishing for the sunken train. The telegraph wires were attached to the bridge, and it was morning before telegraph communication could be established. The cause of the accident is still a mystery, as examination shows the timber was in good condition.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For President,
GROVER CLEVELAND,
of New York.For Vice President,
ALLAN G. THURMAN, of Ohio.AUGUST ELECTION, 1888.
For Sheriff,
JOHN W. ALEXANDER.

The red bandana is all the rage in social circles at Washington City. It promises to continue so for the next four years.

The Democrats of Bracken County nominated "Dock" Hook for Sheriff yesterday, with Ben F. McAtee for Deputy.

The Democrats will, of course, have lots of fun in the coming national contest, but they must not forget for an instant that it takes good solid work to win.

The side-show at Chicago opens its doors to-day, but the spectators will get only a glimpse at the "animals." The real circus will commence to-morrow.

The Pacific Coast delegates are trying to run the Chicago Convention in the interest of the Plumed Knight. They are apt to have considerable help before the convention is over.

There is no good reason why Maysville should not have the Democratic Congressional Convention this year. This point is much easier of access than any other place mentioned.

What has become of Hon. W. O. Bradley's boom for Vice President? It has not been heard of for several weeks. Some of his friends ought to see that it is taken over to Chicago at once.

The Republicans of Kentucky are going to do their level best to carry the State at the approaching elections, and are organizing for that purpose. Every Democrat is called upon to do his whole duty in this campaign and see that his neighbor does likewise.

"CINQ MARS," of the Lexington Daily Press, is badly mistaken if he thinks the Maysville and Big Sandy is not going to prove much of a road for local traffic. The prediction is made that no other road in the State will prove a better one in this respect.

A NUMBER of Democrats have expressed themselves as in favor of giving Nicholas County anything she asks for in the coming Congressional race. Nicholas has carried off the banner in two last campaigns, as far as majorities were concerned, and if she wants anything reasonable she should have it.

The newspaper business in Kentucky seems to be on the increase. There are now published in the State nineteen daily papers, distributed as follows: Maysville two, Covington one, Lexington two, Frankfort two, Louisville five, Owensboro two, Henderson one, Paducah two, and Bowling Green two.

WILLIAM O. BRADLEY's followers are quietly organizing political clubs in every county in the State, and it behooves the Democratic party to do the same thing. Last year's election shows that the Democracy of Kentucky need organization more than they need anything else.—Louisville Times.

True, the Democrats of Kentucky do need a little organizing, but the work seems to progress very slowly. Bradley's cohorts on the other hand are busy.

Public Lands and Pensions.

There is a great deal of solid reading crowded into a few words in the following taken from the Democratic National platform. Read it:

It has reversed the improvident and unwise policy of the Republican party touching the public domain, and has reclaimed from corporations and syndicates, alien and domestic, and restored to the people nearly one hundred millions of acres of valuable land, to be sacredly held as homesteads for our citizens. While carefully guarding the interests of the tax-payers and conforming strictly to the principles of justice and equity, it has paid out more for pensions and bounties to the soldiers and sailors of the Republic than ever was paid before during an equal period.

Cleveland and Thurman Suits Them. "J. B. F." writes an interesting letter to the BULLETIN from Pleasant Valley, Nicholas County, in which he says: "Cleveland and Thurman seems to suit the people in this section, and they think a better ticket could not have been selected. All think now it will be no trouble to lay any Republican on the shelf, not excepting the Plumed Knight should he again offer himself as a sacrifice for the good of his country. Old Nicholas will not be behind in speaking out, and speaking in language not to be misunderstood. Kentucky will give our candidates such a majority as will encourage our friends and co-laborers in the good cause in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and the North-west. Tariff reform is what we want and must have. Engrave Cleveland and Thurman on your banners, unfurl them to the breeze and victory will perch upon them in November next."

"The Bulletin's Ideas of Things."

The Daily Republican seems anxious to know "what are the BULLETIN's ideas of things," referring to the Democratic National platform, adopted at St. Louis. Of course the "BULLETIN's ideas" will cut an important figure in the coming contest and we therefore take advantage of the first opportunity to let our neighbor know just how we stand.

The BULLETIN's ideas of things "are that the platform is an honest, out-and-out, straight-forward declaration in favor of tariff reform. There is no "straddle" of this tariff question, at all. The supreme issue is reform and revision of a burdensome tariff adopted in time of war, and a reduction of taxation. The Democratic party believes that the luxuries of life should be taxed a little higher than at present, and the necessities of life much lower. The present system favors the rich and oppresses the poor. Hence Democrats demand a revision.

The convention at St. Louis reaffirmed the platform of 1884 and endorsed the President's message as "the correct interpretation of that platform upon the question of tariff reduction." Now what does the President say on this question in his message? To use the language of the eloquent Daniel O'Dougherty, "he (the President) courageously declares to Congress, dropping minor matters, that the supreme issue is reform, revision, reduction of national taxation; that the Treasury of the United States, glutted with unneeded gold, oppresses industry, embarrasses business, endangers financial tranquility and breeds extravagance, centralization and corruption; that high taxation, vital for the expenditures of an unparalleled war, is robbery in years of prosperous peace; that the millions that pour into the Treasury come from the hard-savings of the American people; that in violation of equality of rights the present tariff has created a privileged class, who, shaping legislation for personal gain, levy by law contributions on the necessities of life from every man, woman and child in the land; that to lower the tariff is not free trade; it is to reduce the unjust profits of monopolists and boss manufacturers, and allow consumers to retain the rest. The man who asserts that to lower the tariff means free trade insults intelligence. We brand him as a falsifier. It is farthest from thought to imperil capital or disturb enterprise. The aim is to uphold wages and protect the rights of all."

These are the sentiments of the President, of his party and of every true Democrat in the land. They are the "BULLETIN's ideas of things."

We desire to remind our neighbor that he made the allegation that the Democratic platform is a "straddle." The burden of proof is on the "allegator."

The Noblest Roman.

In all this broad land there is no name that inspires greater enthusiasm and confidence in Democratic hearts than that of Allen G. Thurman. The old who have fought with him and under his leadership, love him for his great elements of character, his fidelity to principles and to friends, and the young reverence him for his wisdom and for the virtues that have adorned his life.

In all his career there has been no power that could intimidate, no influence that could bribe him. He never yielded to the insolence of wealth or surrendered any rights of the people to the demands of corporations or monopolies.

There is no grander figure in America to-day. He passed through an era of corruption, of speculation, of fraud, and of sectional hate, when the bitterest passions held sway. Yet he came out unscathed with no taint on his garments, no sin on his shield.

He is the idol of the Democracy and the name of Thurman will add strength to the ticket in every State in the Union.—Portsmouth Times.

CLEVELAND AND THURMAN.

[Exchange.]

It's Cleveland, and it's Thurman,
All over this broad land;
If you don't believe the music,
Just listen to the band.

It's Cleveland, and it's Thurman,
Together, hand in hand,
And when the votes are counted,
You'll find they've got the sand.

It's Cleveland, and it's Thurman,
Oh, but it sounds so good;
And every Democrat to-day,
Is in a happy mood.

It's Cleveland, and it's Thurman,
"The noblest of them all!"
And every tongue is praising them,
We'll elect them both this Fall!

Fashion Notes.

Mummy cloth, made up mummy fashion, with bands of red or yellow and loopings and drapings that more than suggest cerements, is the latest effort of a daring London dress-maker.

Pocket flasks of semi opaque glass curiously mottled with small bits of tinsel, will doubtless be popular with the prohibition contingent, as it is impossible to more than guess at their contents.

Some very new hats have the brim lined with small stemless blossoms, sewed thickly in, or else single petals of large flowers slightly overlap one another, and the effect is youthful and quaintly pretty.

Chinese Architecture.

NEW YORK, June 19.—No. 116 Mott street, the large brick tenement which was bought by the New York Chinese municipality some months ago, will be torn down to-morrow, and a permit has been obtained from the city to build the regular headquarters for Chinamen in real oriental style. Most of the masonry, as well as carpenter work, will be done by Chinese mechanics. This will be the first and only piece of Chinese architecture in the city. The interior as well as the exterior will be very fantastic in appearance. The building is to cost over $25,000. The money has been collected in various Chinese quarters throughout the eastern states. One portion of the building will be devoted to the exclusive use of Joss and attendants. A real metal Joss is to be installed within this sanctuary as soon as it is finished. Another portion of the new building is to be used for hospital purposes where poor and friendless Chinamen will be cared for. Tom Lee and the Chairman of the municipal council at 10 Chatham square form the committee of arrangements.

Mysterious Death.

WAPAKONETA, O., June 19.—Saturday morning Michael Eckenweller, Jr., a farmer living about three miles west of town, ate his breakfast and died very suddenly. He lately had family troubles, and the neighbors, suspecting something wrong, came to town and made complaint to the officers. The city marshal and the coroner hastened to the residence and decided that they would hold a post-mortem examination. Coroner Hunter, assisted by several doctors, examined the stomach and found a quantity of arsenic, but the coroner has not made public his verdict. At the present time it is not known whether it was administered with the intent of murder or the result of embalming.

Falling Off in K. of L.

CHICAGO, June 19.—It was announced semi-officially by Master Workman Schilling, of District Assembly No. 24 to-day, that a mass meeting of Knights of Labor favorable to the anti-Powderly administration would be called very shortly for the purpose of considering the future of the organization in the west. It is no longer concealed that there has been a serious falling off from the membership of the order since the Minneapolis convention in Illinois and Michigan.

A special from Parkersburg says the water in the pools of the Little Kanawha is getting very low, and there is absolutely little or none in the many tributaries of that stream. This fact will entail probably a very heavy loss, as the small streams are literally jammed and piled with logs, ties, staves and timber of all kinds to an amount never before known by the oldest timber merchants. The workingmen, their employers, the merchants, farmers and steamboatmen will all suffer together if there is not a big rise at an early day, and there is little hope of that at this time of year. Such great quantities of timber have been cut within the past few seasons that observant buyers are of the opinion that the forests bordering upon the river and all the tributaries will be completely denuded of their wealth within five or six years if this wholesale work continues.

IN MEMORIAM.

Samuel Thompson was born on the 29th of May, 1809, about two miles north of Germantown. His parents were among the early settlers of our county coming from Maryland and settling on the farm, where the deceased was born, in 1800, when the country was an unsettled wilderness. The subject of this sketch came into possession of the old homestead where he lived until six years ago when he moved to Germantown. He united with the Christian Church at this place in the year 1828 under the preaching of John T. Johnson and was baptized by him. He was always in his place in church, a man of benevolence, a faithful, consistent christian, a plain, unassuming, honest, straightforward citizen enjoying the confidence and esteem of all his associates to the fullest extent. After a long and painful illness which he bore with christian fortitude he died on the 13th day of June, 1888, and on the following day after appropriate services he was laid to rest in the cemetery adjoining the church he loved so well. He leaves three grown sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. Germantown, June 18, 1888.

FUNERAL OF FREDERICK.

OBSEQUIES OVER THE REMAINS OF THE LATE EMPEROR.

The Young Emperor's Desire for Military Glory a Cause for Apprehension—He Has No Love for France—Result of the Post-Mortem Examination—Foreign.

BERLIN, June 19.—The funeral services over the remains of the late Emperor Frederick began at 10 o'clock. Prince Bismarck, Count Von Moltke and the foreign princes arrived early. The railway stations at Berlin and Potsdam were closed against the public. Large crowds congregated outside both stations. Soldiers and police were visible everywhere. The castle Friedrichskron was guarded like a fortress.

At 9 o'clock the ministers took their places around the coffin. The cathedral choir sang two hymns. Chaplain Koegel then blessed the corpse and the mourners, the choir meanwhile singing the hymn, "If I Am to Die." Twelve commanders of twelve different regiments of which the late emperor was chief carried the coffin to the hearse, which was drawn by eight horses, and eight majors took the bridles of the horses, and the procession started for Friedrichskirche.

The church bells tolled until the funeral procession entered the Friedrichskirche, and again after the firing of the artillery salute.

The coffin was removed from the catafalque by twelve officers of the body guard, and borne to the funeral car, preceded by the court chamberlain. The ministers of state, bearing the insignia of royalty, stood opposite the coffin during the service in the church. Gen. Von Blumenthal, with the standard, standing at the head of the coffin. The ceremony in the church was produced in accordance with the instructions given in the last testament of the deceased, Chaplain Koegel and other clergymen officiating. When the procession entered the church a prelude was played on the organ, followed by the choral, "Be Thou faithful Unto Death."

The ceremony concluded with a choral, and the benediction was pronounced in the midst of the roar of military salute, the firing of 101 guns and three volleys of artillery. Then the body of "Unser Fritz" was conveyed to the sepulcher, as it was to the kirche, under a canopy borne by twelve generals and followed by a great concourse of officials of all orders home and foreign. Frederick departed universally esteemed and regretted; his son ascends the imperial throne with few manifestations of welcome.

Public opinion is all at sea in Germany as regards the political future of Europe and the part the young emperor is ambitious to play in European affairs. His mania for military glory and disposition to absolutism are as well determined as were the peaceful and liberal tendencies of the lamented Frederick. He just as certainly knows that he is the pet of the army and the dread of the people as did his father that the German people loved him.

It is significant of this that at the very instant of his father's death, he walked out of the chamber and gave orders to his aide-camp, Baron Von Natziener, to have the palace surrounded with fresh cordons of troops, and sent another officer to order the regiment of hussars of the guard to patrol the grounds, and to let no one in nor to let no one go out. The hussars arrived at a smart trot and did their duty admirably. Even Sir Morell Mackenzie was for half an hour held prisoner.

In fact all Potsdam were patrolled by troops as if it were in the presence of an enemy. It was an unusual and seemingly unnecessary proceeding, yet indicated upon what the young emperor relies against the liberal spirit of the nation. It evinced a fear of Social tie plotting.

Moreover, Frederick was not dead ten minutes before the royal standard of imperial purple was hoisted over his Mariner palace at Potsdam.

This first public act of the new emperor has quickened the public perception of the fact that Germany is entering upon a new regime. No person expects immediate developments pointing to a critical state of affairs, but all the best informed military and diplomatic authorities are aware that the new emperor's desire is to hasten the final outcome, whatever it may be, of the present political situation. As crown prince he freely expressed the view that the condition of armed suspense in Europe for over two years ought to come to an end; that the triple alliance was able to defeat any coalition, and ought not wait for a convenient time for its enemies to open the attack.

A story that has gained ground in France, and is becoming generally believed, is to the effect that the new ruler of Germany, backed by Bismarck, has in mind the institution of a series of provocations to France, of which the passport annoyance is but the beginning. Of course, Bismarck is credited with being the prime mover in the plan, but the new emperor is considered as particularly hostile towards the French people, and desirous of bringing about a war with that country in order to settle on a more secure basis the ownership of Alsace-Lorraine, and of wiping out from the score a few grudges which he bears France. The object of these alleged provocations is war, and as one by one the indignities are launched upon France, the latter country (so the story goes) will be forced to defend her honor.

"If this be true," says the paper that gives this story publication, "it would be easier for France not to wait until forced into conflict, but to strike the initial blow herself and show the young Hohenzollern that France is no mean foe. The victory belongs to him who strikes the first blow."

The proclamation of the new German emperor is awaited with great interest. It is certain it will abound in peaceful protestations, which will not much reassure those who have observed the intensely military spirit running through the address to the army and navy. Every act of administration of the emperor will be carefully scrutinized by entire Europe, while the sense of responsibility will for a time act as a check upon the emperor. Every one who knows him believes he would warmly welcome the opportunity to win laurels as a great military chieftain.

BALTIMORE, June 19.—The ninth annual convention of the National League of American Wheelmen began today.
